

Sept. 24, 2020

Methods for on-site voting are shifting back to paper ballots

More than half of registered voters who used direct recording electronic systems at polls in 2016 will find the equipment replaced this year by hand-marked ballots or by ballot marking devices, according to the Verified Voting Foundation. DREs, which record votes directly onto a computer's memory, are steadily joining the ranks of outmoded mechanical lever voting machines and notorious punch card systems.

